National Memories Exhibit

Featuring Photos and Stories
Celebrating the Legendary Friendship and Cooperation between the U.S. and China during WWII

August 2015 marks the 70th anniversary of the end of World War II. Seven decades ago, a common cause bound together two great nations across the Pacific: the U.S. and China. They served side-by-side in the China-Burma-India (CBI) Theater, forging legendary friendships that transcended race, language, and culture. Their stories connect the diverse paths of these two nations, shaping collective memories that continue to inspire collaboration and peace.

National Memories Exhibit will display over 100 valuable historical photos selected from the National Archives and dossiers in China. Taken mostly by the U.S. 164th Signal Photo Company during the war years, the pictures highlight renowned historical figures, such as GEN Joseph Stilwell, LTG Claire Lee Chennault of the American Flying Tigers, and top Chinese leaders. The Exhibit will also present images of soldiers, medics, and civilians — the many unsung heroes from both countries who were united in a valiant cause. From tropical jungles to arid hinterland, from populous cities to remote villages, they fought, lived, and ultimately prevailed with tenacity, bravery, sacrifice, and hope. National Memories Exhibit features their stories.

National Memories Exhibit invites you to remember and commemorate the shared memories between the U.S. and China, and honor those who sacrificed for a peaceful future.

"We will never forget the friendship, the support, the assistance given to us at the critical moment in the history of China, which helped us win the war against Japanese aggression. I think this built a good foundation ... for our future partnership, future collaboration."

-- He Yafei

(Vice Chairman of China Overseas Exchange Association)

"We see in these photographs a reminder of the friendship between the Chinese and American people. We hope that this exhibit will be seen as a small token of gratitude for the assistance from the American people during World War II."

-- Zhang Dongpan

(Curator)

"Chinese people never forgot a friend."

-- John Easterbrook

(Retired U.S. Army Colonel, Grandson of GEN Joseph Stilwell, Curator)

"The historic friendship between China and the U.S. in WWII was significant for the outcome of the war, and continues to resonate with citizens of both countries"

-- Kenneth H. DeHoff Jr.
